Introduction: Why This Conference

Men carry a unique mandate in the household of God and in society: to guard, to provide, and to build. Yet many men in our churches were never disciplined in the practical stewardship of resources, time, and opportunity. This conference exists to close that gap — to root financial discipleship in Scripture and equip men with tools they can apply on Monday morning.

The conference unfolds in three connected sessions:

- Session One — Stewardship: the theological foundation. What does it mean that everything belongs to God?
- Session Two — Entrepreneurship: the Kingdom mindset for creating value, taking risk, and multiplying what God has entrusted.
- Session Three — Financial Literacy: the practical tools — budgeting, saving, giving, debt, and investing.

"Moreover it is required in stewards that a man be found faithful."
— 1 Corinthians 4:2

Session One: The Biblical Foundation of Stewardship

1. The Owner and the Steward

Stewardship begins with a confession: nothing we hold is ultimately ours.

"The earth is the LORD'S, and the fulness thereof; the world, and they that dwell therein." — Psalm 24:1

A steward manages another's property for the owner's purposes and profit. Every man in the room is a manager, not a proprietor — of his body, his time, his family, his talents, and his money. This single shift in identity, from owner to steward, is the theological engine of the entire conference.

2. The Dominion Mandate

"Be fruitful, and multiply... and have dominion... And the LORD God took the man, and put him into the garden of Eden to dress it and to keep it." — Genesis 1:28; 2:15

Before sin entered the world, God had already assigned man work: to cultivate (dress) and to protect (keep). Stewardship is therefore not a curse of the Fall but a dignity of Creation. Work, productivity, and resource management are part of the original design for manhood, not merely a consequence of the curse in Genesis 3.

3. The Parable of the Talents

"Unto one he gave five talents, to another two, and to another one; to every man according to his several abilities... For unto every one that hath shall be given, and he shall have abundance." — Matthew 25:15, 29

Three servants received capital according to their capacity. Two invested and doubled it; one buried his out of fear and was rebuked as "wicked and slothful." The parable teaches four enduring principles of stewardship:

- Distribution is unequal but always sufficient — God gives "according to ability," not randomly.
- Faithfulness, not the size of the portion, is what is rewarded (v.21, 23 — the same commendation for five and two talents).
- Burying resources out of fear is treated as sin, not humility.
- Reward for faithful stewardship is greater responsibility, not retirement — "I will make thee ruler over many things."

Key Takeaway — Session One

- You do not own what you have; you administer it.
- God expects growth, not mere preservation.
- Fear is the enemy of faithful stewardship, not risk itself.

Discussion Questions — Session One

1. What has God entrusted to you that you have been "burying" out of fear rather than putting to work?
2. How does seeing yourself as a steward rather than an owner change the way you make decisions about money this month?
3. In what areas of your life have you confused faithfulness with playing it safe?

Session Two: Entrepreneurship — The Kingdom Business Mindset

1. Entrepreneurship Is a Spiritual Gift, Not Just a Secular Skill

Scripture presents wealth-creating ability itself as God-given, not merely the wealth.

"Remember the LORD thy God: for it is he that giveth thee power to get wealth." — Deuteronomy 8:18

The gift is the capacity to create — to see opportunity, organize resources, take calculated risk, and produce value. This reframes business as ministry: the marketplace is a legitimate field of Kingdom service, not a lesser calling than pulpit ministry.

2. Biblical Models of Enterprise

- Joseph (Genesis 41) — turned a famine into a national economic strategy through forecasting, storage, and disciplined planning.

- Solomon (1 Kings 9–10) — built trade networks, a merchant fleet, and international commerce alongside his spiritual leadership.
- The Shunammite woman (2 Kings 4) — used discernment and hospitality as an economic asset, building a guest room as an investment in relationship and reward.
- Lydia (Acts 16:14) — a "seller of purple," a businesswoman whose enterprise funded and hosted the early church at Philippi.
- The virtuous woman (Proverbs 31:16, 24) — "she considereth a field, and buyeth it... she maketh fine linen, and selleth it." A model of evaluation, acquisition, production, and trade applicable to any believer.

3. Principles for the Kingdom Entrepreneur

"Seest thou a man diligent in his business? he shall stand before kings." — Proverbs 22:29

- Diligence over shortcuts: "The hand of the diligent maketh rich" (Proverbs 10:4).
- Counting the cost before building: "For which of you, intending to build a tower, sitteth not down first, and counteth the cost?" (Luke 14:28).
- Diversification: "Give a portion to seven, and also to eight; for thou knowest not what evil shall be upon the earth" (Ecclesiastes 11:2) — multiple streams of income as biblical wisdom, not merely modern financial advice.
- Start small, stay consistent: the two-talent and five-talent servants both simply "traded" (Matthew 25:16) — steady faithful effort, not a single lucky venture.

Practical Application — Session Two

- Identify one skill, trade, or gift you currently possess but have not monetized.

- Write down one small, low-risk step you can take this month to test a business idea.
- Ask: who around me can I partner with, mentor, or learn from in enterprise?

Discussion Questions — Session Two

1. What talent, trade, or skill has God given you that you have not yet stewarded into an income stream?
2. Which biblical model — Joseph's planning, Lydia's trade, or the virtuous woman's diligence — most challenges how you currently operate?
3. What is one cost you have been avoiding counting before starting (or growing) a venture?

Session Three: Financial Literacy — Practical Tools

1. Budgeting: Counting the Cost

A budget is simply obedience to Luke 14:28 written on paper. Every shilling should be assigned a purpose before the month begins.

- List all income sources and all fixed and variable expenses.
- Give every shilling a job: giving, needs, savings, debt repayment, wants — in that order of priority.
- Review monthly; a budget is a living document, not a one-time exercise.

2. Giving: The First-Fruits Discipline

"Honour the LORD with thy substance, and with the firstfruits of all thine increase... Bring ye all the tithes into the storehouse... and prove me now herewith, saith the LORD of hosts." — Proverbs 3:9; Malachi 3:10

Giving is placed first, not last, in the financial order — it is the act that declares who the true Owner is. A man who tithes before he budgets the rest has already practiced the core lesson of Session One.

3. Saving: Preparing Without Being Told

"Go to the ant, thou sluggard; consider her ways, and be wise: which having no guide, overseer, or ruler, provideth her meat in the summer." — Proverbs 6:6–8

- Build an emergency fund before pursuing investment — Joseph stored grain before Egypt needed it.
- Automate savings where possible so it happens before spending, not after.

4. Avoiding the Bondage of Debt

"The rich ruleth over the poor, and the borrower is servant to the lender." — Proverbs 22:7

- Distinguish productive debt (financing an asset that generates income) from consumptive debt (financing lifestyle or depreciating goods).
- Avoid guaranteeing loans or entering agreements without full understanding — "He that hateth suretiship is sure" (Proverbs 11:15).
- Beware of get-rich-quick schemes: "He that hasteth to be rich hath an evil eye" (Proverbs 28:22); "Wealth gotten by vanity shall be diminished" (Proverbs 13:11).

5. Investing for Generational Impact

"A good man leaveth an inheritance to his children's children." — Proverbs 13:22

- Move surplus from savings into productive assets: land, business capital, education, skills.

- Think in generations, not merely in months — stewardship outlives the steward.
- Diversify (Ecclesiastes 11:2) rather than concentrating all resources in a single venture.

The Financial Order of Priority

- 1. Give — honour God with the first fruits (Proverbs 3:9).
- 2. Save — build margin before it is needed (Proverbs 6:6–8).
- 3. Cover needs and responsibly manage debt (Proverbs 22:7).
- 4. Invest for growth and generational inheritance (Proverbs 13:22).
- 5. Enjoy the remainder with a clear conscience (Ecclesiastes 5:19).

Discussion Questions — Session Three

1. Do you currently operate on a written budget? If not, what is the one honest reason you have avoided it?
2. Is any debt you currently carry productive or consumptive? What is one step toward freedom from consumptive debt?
3. What inheritance — financial, spiritual, or in skill — are you currently building for your children's children?

Closing Charge: A Covenant of Stewardship

Gentlemen, the measure of a man is not the size of what he holds, but the faithfulness of how he holds it. God is not asking for men who never fail in business, but for men who will not bury what has been entrusted to them out of fear. He is not asking for reckless entrepreneurs, but for diligent stewards who count the cost, work with their hands, give from the first fruits, and build something that will outlast them.

"Well done, thou good and faithful servant... enter thou into the joy of thy lord." — Matthew 25:21

Let every man here leave this conference not merely informed, but committed — to budget, to give, to save, to build, and to leave an inheritance that testifies to a life stewarded well.
